GRAND BLOW-OUT.

Opening of the New Chamber of Commerce at Cincinnati.

THE GREAT BUILDING CROWDED FROM TOP TO BOTTOM

With Thousands of the Queen City's Best Citizens and Scores of Prominent People From Abroad—The Dedication Exercises at the New Building—Grand Banquet In the Evening.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 31.—The Cincinnati new chamber of commerce has been opened, Tuesday evening a grand promenade concert was given. It is very doubtful if there ever was another such crowd gathered in Cincinnati. From a few minutes past 7 o'clock until after 10 there was an incessant stream of humanity pouring into the building from Fourth street, and as very few came out at the exit on Vine street until long after 9 o'clock, the condition of the building within can be better imagined than described.

The style of architecture is massive Romanesque. The walls are of undressed granite, rounded to a tower at each corner. The height from the sidewalk to the top of the roof is 188 feet. The main entrance is on Fourth street, with two others on Vine and Baker streets.

The exchange hall is on the second floor, and extends the entire length of the building, 135 by 66 feet, exclusive of lobby, 33 by 23 feet. The ceiling is 50 feet high. The entrance is by those grand archways of polished granite. At the head of the stairway is the superintendent's room, and adjoining is the smokers' room. On the floor above the superintendent's are rooms for the directors, committees and clerks. There is a gallery above for visitors overlooking the floor of the main hall. On the intermediate floors above, on either side of the skylight, are three stories of seventeen rooms each, which will be rented for offices.

Four magnificent chandeliers, costing $1,500 each, with 163 gas jets to each, and the same number of electric lights will furnish light for the great hall. The gas fixtures cost $12,000 and the electric plant $11,000. The structure is as nearly fire proof as it is possible to make any building. The chamber of commerce organization is about $200,000 in debt. The site cost $100,000, and the value of the whole property complete with furniture may be stated at about $1,000,000.

A wall of the burned Grand opera house at Duluth, Minn., fell, and a man named Chamberlin was struck by it and instantly killed.

Two men, who skated a twenty-mile race at Minneapolis, on Sunday, were arrested and fined $50 for violating a Sunday ordinance.

James Bell, colored, was arrested at Terre Haute, Ind., on a charge of bigamy. After his arrest he confessed that he was also a counterfeiter.

Mad. Haldermann, of Greencastle, Ind., had a racket with her man and attempted suicide by morphine, but the doctor got there too soon.

Mrs. Rawson, on trial at Chicago for attempting to kill Lawyer Whitney, kissed an attorney for the state and was severely rebuked by the court.

John Wright, a driver in a mine at Tilton, Ill., received fatal internal injuries by his car jumping the track and crushing him against the entry wall.

Dexter Wakefield, of Corry, Pa., was killed by an express train on the New York, Pennsylvania & Ohio, at a crossing two miles west of that city.

Senator Culom, in an address thanking the Illinois legislature for his re-election, expressed hope of the future annexation of Canada to the United States.

A caving of the river bank at Leota Landing, Miss., destroyed the landing warehouse, and did damage amounting to $8,000. More than an acre of soil disappeared.

The St. Louis Mechanics' exchange has decided to join the National Building Association, and to send delegates to the convention to be held next month in Philadelphia.

Attorney Farland was assaulted in court St. Louis, by a client who had conspired to a ten years' imprisonment for robbery. The judge raised the sentence to fifteen years.

Charles L. Unstead, engineer on the Cleveland, Akron & Columbus railway, in the courts here brought suit against that road for $30,000 damages, claimed for injuries sustained in a collision last July.

Two Swedes, named Anderson and Benson, were drowned in the Mississippi river near Fountain City, Wis. They were riding on an ice boat, when a swift gust of wind carried them into an open channel of the river.

The jury in the damage case of Abraham Spoon, of Winton, O., against J. P. De Wolfe, editor of the Postorino Review, gave the plaintiff $50. In 1880 the Review gave publicity to a rumor that Spoon and his son had committed a murder.

No excitement at Port-au-Prince.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—The Dutch steamer Orange Nassau, which has arrived from West Indian ports, report everything quiet at Port-au-Prince at the time of sailing. The Haytian men-of-war had all proceeded to Cape Haytian to blockade that port.

Distillery Burned.

CHICAGO, Jan. 31.—The Young distillery at Gary, Ill., owned by Francis M. Young, was burned to the ground early this morning.

ON THE ADVENT OF HER VISITING HER DAUGHTER AT BIARRITZ.

Since Her Departure From Berlin Empress Victoria's Health Has Greatly Improved—The Scheme for the East African Expedition Perfected—Disturbances at Pesth—Foreign.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—The honors offered to the English queen by the French government are an earnest of the republic's desire to stand well with its insular neighbor. To have her advent at Biarritz signalized by the escort and salutes of four French men-of-war cannot be otherwise than flattering to Victoria's pride, and her choice of this nook by the sea instead of Florence, Cannes or Nice for her sojourn will gratify the population of the town, at least.

QUEEN VICTORIA.

Biarritz has suffered many reverses since the days of the empire, when the set which followed the Empress Eugenie and the Comte de Morny overran it every season and squandered millions during their stay.

The royal visitor will be hailed with much satisfaction by the hotelkeepers and tradesmen, and the Parisian gossips are endeavoring to give significance to the fact that she will be the hostess of her daughter, the Empress Victoria.

EMPERESS VICTORIA.

It is intimated that the German emperor remonstrated against his mother's stay for an indefinite period on French territory, but she has a will of her own, and her late association with her mother has done nothing, it is understood, to weaken its display.

Since her escape from the ponderous and wearying etiquette of the German court to the perfect freedom of Windsor, not only has her health improved, but she has developed an independence of demeanor which it is hardly likely she will ever allow to be stifled by her bullying son.

EX-EMPERESS EUGENIE.

It is known that her mother advised her to accept the legacy of the Duchess de Gallier, while the Emperor William forbade her to become the holder of property situated on French soil. It is not a characteristic of the Coburgs to refuse gifts, especially of such magnitude as the one in question, and it is likely that an arrangement will be effected whereby the royal legate can retain the pecuniary value of her windfall without wounding the tender susceptibilities of the kaiser.

The rumor that the Empress Eugenie will pay a visit to her royal cousins during their stay at Biarritz is due to the lively imagination of a Figaro attache, but a writer on the

Voltaire has outstripped him in flight of fancy, confidently assuring the readers of that veracious print that Eugenie will accompany Victoria and her daughter on their contemplated trip to Spain as guests of the queen regent, thus presenting to Europe the spectacle of four widow queens assembled to console over their misfortunes, or to give and accept advice as to plans for future conduct in such emergencies as may arise.

The East African Expedition.

BERLIN, Jan. 31.—In the reichstag Tuesday the East African bill passed the second reading after a short debate. Only Progressists and Socialist members opposed the measure. Lent. Wissman was again present and offered to give whatever explanations the members desired. When questioned regarding the composition of his forces, he declared that the employment office would be unavoidable; that the more energetic their action was the briefer it would be, and the briefer it was the more effective it would be and the less liable to affect the general situation. He said he could not disclose the plans relating to the number of troops that would be employed nor how he designed to restore order on the coast and in the interior.

The scheme for the expedition is perfected. Wissman declined to inform the committee regarding the details of the equipment of the expedition, being instructed to preserve silence. Before coming to the reichstag Wissman lunched with the emperor. The Post announces that the officers of the exhibition have been instructed to be ready to start at the end of next week.

Disorder at Pesth.

PESTH, Jan. 31.—After three weeks of stormy debates the Hungarian diet has passed the military bill by a majority of 126 votes. A large number of students who were opposed to the measure, and who favored the creation of the National army, blocked the approaches to the chamber during the closing debate. They cheered the opponents of the bill and groaned and jeered at the government. When Herr Von Tisza, the prime minister, emerged from the parliamentary building, after the vote was taken, he was surrounded by students and had great difficulty in reaching his carriage. It was necessary for the police to assist him to pass through the crowd. No arrests were made.

The Pope's Temporal Power.

BERLIN, Jan. 31.—The Catholic movement in favor of the restoration of the temporal power of the pope is extending. Meetings at Bruck, Salzburg, Innsbruck and other places have adopted resolutions condemning the restrictions imposed by the Italian government upon the holy see. Catholics, the resolution declares, must not rest until the supremacy of the church is recognized. It is significant that no meeting has yet demanded action by the government in defense of the pope.

Why Mr. Black Was Recalled.

VIENNA, Jan. 31.—Mr. Black, the American consul at Pesth, who has just been recalled, recently wrote an article in which he dwelt upon the alleged financial disadvantage suffered by Hungary through her political connection with Austria. The Austrian government made no complaint, but Mr. Jussen, the American consul general in this city, called Mr. Bayard's attention to the article as a breach of professional rules.

China Wants No Railroads.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 31.—An imperial decree forbidding the further extension of the Tientsin railway has been issued, as a result of a declaration by the imperial astrologers that the recent fire in the emperor's palace, at Pekin, was an evil omen, and should be interpreted as a warning against the adoption of western inventions.

Foreign Notes.

Signor De Mitto has been appointed secretary of the Italian legation at Washington in place of Count De Foresta, who will be transferred to Brussels.

Queen Victoria has sent Emperor William two magnificent Indian vases of great value as a birthday present, and ex-Empress Frederick an exquisite brocade group.

The first great Russian ball of the season took place Monday evening. The czarina first danced with Gen. Von Schweinitz, while the czar's partner was Lady Morier. At supper Gen. Schweinitz was seated on the right of the czarina.

It has been discovered that three copies of Frederick's diary remain in Italy, one in the possession of King Humbert, another the property of Prince Amadeo, while a third lies in the Italian state paper office. The Italian government deny the possibility of any of these being used for publication.

The municipal authorities of Constantinople, without previous notice, insist upon levying a tax of seventy piastres upon printers and publishers. The Greek printers are chiefly affected. The journal Neologos has suspended publication. British, Italian and French embassadors are using their influence to induce the authorities to withdraw the tax.

Ohio Legislature.

The senate convened at 4 p. m. Tuesday, President pro tem. Davis in the chair. Mr. Bradock's two-cent-fare bill was postponed until Tuesday, February 12.

A number of local bills were passed. The following bills were introduced: Changing the plan of conveying insane persons to asylums; requiring county commissioners' reports to be published in papers of opposite politics; amending the law of health boards; preventing the adulteration of confectionery; abolishing the Cleveland board of aldermen; repealing the Taylor street improvement law; granting a lien for boarding stock; preventing officers from securing business for favorite attorneys; making directory the act to improve Woodburn avenue; providing a penalty for keeping a livery horse longer than the specified time when engaged; changing the manner of fixing the boundary line of wards; re-enacting the "black laws" relating to schools and marriages; providing for election of a state board of equalization; authorizing mayors to solemnize marriages.

The house met at 4 p. m., and was called to order by the speaker. A number of petitions were presented for the passage of Strahanau's bill to prevent the importation and sale of oleomargarine.

The following resolution was offered: Amending the constitution relative to municipal governments; for the better protection of fish.

KENTUCKY's electoral vote was delivered at Washington City at the eleventh hour. Brother Collier, the messenger, was a little slow, but he "got there."

The West Virginia Legislature is wasting lots of valuable time over the United States Senatorship. Why don't they re-elect Senator Kennedy and be done with it?

The Frankfort Capital has changed its day of publication from Saturday to Tuesday. Its sparkling editorial columns show the handiwork of the brilliant and gifted Colonel Polk Johnson.

HON. JO. C. S. BLACKBURN, through the Democrats of his home county, has served notice that he is a candidate for re-election to the U. S. Senate. When the gifted and eloquent Senator enters a contest he goes in to win.

The Lake Erie steamers that usually stop running on the first of December on account of ice, are still on the go. Nothing like the weather of this winter has ever been known to lake navigators, at least not for years and years.

A BILL is pending in the Ohio Legislature to prohibit Clerks, Sheriffs and all other court officers from steering clients into the hands of favorite attorneys by virtue of official advantages. The originator of this measure must believe in a fair and square deal all around.

No doubt the Samoa trouble has been greatly exaggerated. The affair is too trivial for two such countries as the United States and Germany to go to war over. There is enough diplomacy and statesmanship in the two countries to settle the question amicably and to the satisfaction of all concerned.

An Enquirer special from Indianapolis says "General Harrison had many callers Tuesday. Among them was James McCrea, Superintendent of the Western division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, with whom the General talked regarding his trip to Washington on February 25th. The Rev. David Winters, of Williamsburg paid his respects, as did Colonel G. W. Adair, of Maysville, Ky."

The latest developments indicate that Blaine will be Secretary of State, Allison Secretary of the Treasury, Alger Secretary of War and Wanamaker Postmaster General under General Harrison. That's right. The laborer is worthy of his hire. Blaine didn't make all those speeches in the last campaign just for fun, nor solely for the success of his party. And Alger Wanamaker must have something for the "hoodie" that did as much as anything else to carry Indiana and New York and give their party the victory.

HON. W. W. DUDLEY, the alleged author of the "blocks of five" circular, which he positively denies having written and proclaims as a base forgery and infamous libel, has begun suit for $25,000 damages against the Evening Post, Times, Commercial Advertiser and World, leading Mugwump and Democratic papers of New York. Colonel Dudley proposes to make these lying libelers sweat for it, and he ought to. The little cars may keep on barking.—Ripley Bee.

You're late finding out about those suits. They were filed prior to the Presidential election, or long about that time. And the newspapers are not losing any sleep over the matter at all. On the contrary they are making it hot for "Billie Boddler Dudley," and have been trying to get him into court for some time to tell what he knows about that infamous "blocks-of-five" circular. It is hardly necessary to add that he is keeping out of the way. He is the one who will "sweat for it" before the suits are settled.

THERE are 60,000 persons engaged in the canning industry in the State of Maryland alone. The yearly output of canned goods in this country reaches $50,000,000 or $60,000,000. Much of the fruit and vegetables thus saved would otherwise go to waste. These goods sell in the market at very low rates, and the poor are thus furnished with cheap food the year around. This industry was but little heard of a few years since, but it is now furnishing profitable employment to thousands. Those who are acquainted with the business claim that an establishment of the kind here in Maysville would prove a profitable investment, and no doubt it would.

A shoe factory could be conducted here just as profitably as anywhere else. Why not? Maysville has advantages other cities would like very much to possess.

But the trouble is to get the men of capital to go into such enterprises. The idea seems to have possessed them that a factory must be started on a big scale or not at all. That's the wrong view. It is better to commence on a small scale and then branch out as the business increases.

Diversified enterprises, even though on a moderate basis, would soon make Maysville a place of great industrial activity.

DODGING TAXES.

A Question of the Right to Turn Property into Treasury Notes.

A special from Washington City says a case will come up in the United States Supreme Court next week which will decide a question of interest to people who have bank accounts.

A depositor in a Cadez, O., bank, it is alleged, undertook to get ahead of the tax assessor by taking advantage of the provision of a paternal government that Treasury notes shall not be taxable. Before making a return of his earthly possessions to the assessors, he had his balance in the bank converted into a certificate of deposit, which purported that the deposit was in Treasury notes. After the assessment he surrendered the certificate and resumed business under ordinary circumstances.

The device was constructed to be an attempt to take advantage of the provision of law relating to Treasury notes. Suit was brought to recover the tax that the State claimed. The case has gone through the Ohio courts and was last decided by the Supreme Court of Ohio in favor of the State. In its regular order the case would not be reached by the United States Supreme Court within three years, but, in view of its importance, it has been advanced so that it can be heard soon.

The amount involved is only $2,500, but if the decision of the Ohio Supreme Court be overturned depositors throughout the country can escape their taxes.

SENATOR BLACKBURN.

The Woodford County Democrats Endorse Him for Re-election.

A convention of the Democrats of Woodford County was held this week for the purpose of indorsing Senator Jo C. S. Blackburn for re-election to the United States Senate. The following resolutions were passed:

"WHEREAS, We, the Democracy of Woodford County, Ky., the birthplace and home of Senator Jo C. S. Blackburn who is now the junior Senator from said State in the Congress of the United States, recognizing in him a public servant of great ability, experience and ripened knowledge of national affairs, who has at all times and under all circumstances faithfully and eloquently championed the rights and protected the interests of the people as against monopolies, trusts and injurious and unjust combinations of all kinds, and

"WHEREAS, They believe the interests of the State of Kentucky, as well as the interests of the Democracy of the United States, require his re-election and return to the Senate, in which he has even now become a useful and brilliant member; now, therefore,

"Be it resolved by the Democracy of Woodford County in mass meeting assembled, That we heartily and sincerely indorse the many and straightforward and honest course that has always been pursued by Senator Blackburn, and proudly point out to the Democrats of Kentucky his great and noble qualities of mind and heart.

"That we remember with pride and satisfaction that he has ever, in a courageous manner, defended and praised those whom slander, malice or unreasonable prejudice have sought to oppress or injure, and have never failed to meet out justice to whom justice is due.

"And that we do in the most earnest and urgent manner recommend his re-election, and ask the Democracy of the State to retain his invaluable and effective services by returning him to the United States Senate."

THEY HELD WATER

How the Tables Were Turned On a Minister Fond of Fishing.

"Modern conveniences," in case of accident, often cause more trouble than the want of them. Here is a ludicrous example that illustrates it—or at least it shows that people who wade in rubber pantaloons must keep right side up. The Harrisburg (Pa.) Telegraph tells the story at the expense of a well known minister who is very fond of trout fishing:

A friend made him a present of rubber trousers, attached to which were heavy boots, the whole arrangement forming one piece. He waded in the streams and fished, and grieved the other fishermen who didn't own own trousers, and had lots of sport.

At night, when they came in tired and hungry, the fishin' would be nice and dry, while the other fellows would be more or less wet, according to their mishaps, and, of course, would be chafed by the minister.

One morning they were all standing on the bank, watching him wading in deep water, and envying him, when all of a sudden he stepped on a slippery stone, his feet went up, and he went in over head.

They fished him out, and found he weighed about a ton, the water having filled up his boots and trousers to the waist. The funny part of it was that they couldn't pull off the combined boots and trousers, and so they had to stand him on his head against a tree until the water ran out.

They fished him out, and found he weighed about a ton, the water having filled up his boots and trousers to the waist. The funny part of it was that they couldn't pull off the combined boots and trousers, and so they had to stand him on his head against a tree until the water ran out.

It was very undignified and uncomfortable position for a minister, made more so by the boys, who stood around and descended on the great convenience gum trousers were to a man who went fishing. But he still fishes, and once a year comes to Pennsylvania to "whip" his favorite stream.

A RIFT IN THE CLOUDS.

Only a rift in the leaden clouds,
And a glimpse of the winter skies,
That seemed as clear and blue to me
As the light in my baby's eyes.

But I paused on the threshold of sin—
Lingered—and turned away;
Saved by the light of angel eyes;
That smiled through the clouds of gray.—Ella Higgins in The Chicago Journal

A Millionaire Funeral.

Weston Dodson, a pioneer operator in the anthracite coal regions of Pennsylvania, died a few days ago and was buried on Saturday. He was worth over $6,000,000. His pall-bearers were thirteen in number, and the average wealth each represented was nearly $8,000,000; the total wealth of the thirteen being $100,000,000.

The Latest in Garter Buckles.

A jeweler said to a New York Sun reporter: "The magnificence of garter buckles is significant of the extent to which the rage for personal decoration has grown among women. We finished a pair of garter buckles yesterday which were valued at $800. It would not be well, perhaps, for me to say who they were for, though the name is well enough known among the 400. They were a present from one sister to another. The design was more or less original. One side of the buckle was in the form of a heraldic shield, and had to be very skillfully enameled, owing to the amount of work in the quarters, while the other clasp of the buckle had the monogram set in diamonds."

Lacing the Liver in Twain.

[Youth's Companion.]

Says Dr. Austin Flint, one of the highest and fairest authorities in America: "The most important distortion of the liver is that produced by tight lacing. In consequence of the constriction of the lower part of the chest the liver is compressed from side to side, and a circular furrow or depression is produced, which may be so deep as almost to divide the organ transversely into two parts, of which the lower may even be tilted up over the upper. Corresponding to the tight lace furrow the liver substance is atrophied, and the capsule is thickened and opaque."

According to W. Johnson Smith, of England, the wasting at the furrow may go on until the parts above and below it are connected merely by a membranous band. Recently, in this country, a physician cut off and removed the lower portion of the liver of a tight-lacing patient.

A Toothsome Spread.

Norristown Herald: A young man can't take his girl out skating this winter, but he can let her slide.

Jeweler's Weekly: The boy wonders what makes the watch go, the man wonders what makes it stop.

Atchison Globe: Some people make a dollars worth of trouble in accomplishing five cents work of good.

Boston Post: "Love is generous," signs the poet, but nevertheless there is more or less Cupid-ity connected with it.

Providence Journal: Happy thought—suppose we put on bounty of a cent a pound on woolen yarn, and darn the expenses.

Martha's Vineyard Herald: Working the growler—making your husband hang out the clothes on a freezing washing day.

Bringhamton Republican: It detracts somewhat from the interest of the report that a man has been found with two hearts to learn that they were both up his sleeve.

MYSTERIOUSLY MISSING.

A Traveling Salesman Disappears at Ripley—Suspicions of Foul Play.

Eb Chenev, a traveling salesman, disappeared at Ripley last Friday evening and his relatives are anxiously searching for some trace of him.

The affair is shrouded in mystery, and there is strong suspicion of foul play.

Chenev represented the drug house of Orr, Brown & Price, of Columbus, O. He arrived at Ripley Friday morning, and hired a horse and buggy and drove to Russellville and Georgetown. He did not return until after 5 p. m., when he left his sample cases at Fulton's drug store and went to the Ross House where he took supper. He seemed in his usual good health and spirits. At 7 o'clock that evening he was noticed standing on the corner of Main and Front streets. Since then nothing has been seen of him.

The Bee says fears are entertained that he met with some accident about the river in the darkness, or was set up and murdered by some of the desperate characters that infest the town. His samples were found at the drug store where he left them.

Chenev formerly represented C. P. Calvert & Co. of Cincinnati. He resides at 177 Betts street, that city, now. He is a man of about 40 years of age, short but heavily built, dark complexion, black mustache, round face, and when last seen wore dark clothes.

His wife and her father were at Ripley one day this week but could find no trace of him.

If the missing man does not turn up in a few days Cincinnati detectives will be put on the case.

“Historic Families of Kentucky.”

The Cincinnati publishing house of Clarke & Clarke will issue in a few days a work entitled “Historic Families of Kentucky,” from the pen of Colonel Thomas M. Green, of Mayville.

The title of the book and the name of the author insure a deep interest in the work on the part of every reading man in the State. Colonel Green is not only a polished and incisive writer, but the bent of his mind and the study of a life-time have equipped him as no other living man is equipped for the task which he has discharged in this work. All who know the author will believe him when he declares “the subjects were treated to suit myself, without the slightest regard to the popularity or sale of the work.”

Tom Green is a writer of family history, in which Kentucky is so rich, not of personal eulogy of which she has had more than enough.

We predict for “Historic Families of Kentucky” quick sales and a lively discussion.—Louisville Times.

Death of Lieutenant Governor Bryan's Father.

A telegram from Nashville, Tenn., Tuesday announced the death at that place of the venerable father of Lieutenant Governor J. W. Bryan, who had been summoned to his bedside the night before. The venerable man resided with his son, Hon. M. T. Bryan, at Nashville, and it was at his residence that he died.

The deceased was born in Limerick, Ireland, and was about seventy-five years old. He came to this country in 1850 or '51, stopping first in New Orleans. He afterwards removed to Kentucky and resided here in Mason County for some time. On leaving here he went to Cincinnati, where he died until a few years ago, removing thence to Nashville.

The deceased leaves a number of relatives in this county, among them his brother, Mr. Patrick Bryan, of Maysville, and his nieces, Mrs. A. Honan and Mrs. Patrick Daly, of this city, and Mrs. John Lane, of Washington.

The remains will be interred at Paris this morning at 11 o'clock. Rt. Rev. Father Broasoff, of Covington, Vicar General of this Diocese, will conduct the funeral services.

He sang no more tunes that night.—Ripley Bee.

A CONVENTION of Kentucky tobacco-growers will be held at Lexington next Monday to discuss the “abstention” proposition. There will be a crop raised this year, no matter what their decision may be. Their action, however, may serve to cut the acreage. The tobacco-growers should adopt Colonel W. W. Baldwin’s suggestion—grow half the usual crop and make it “as fine as split silk.”

STOVES!

For the next few days we

WE'RE ALL RIGHT.

Our Navy Much Stronger Than is Generally Supposed.

THE VESUVIUS CAN SINK ANY MAN-OF-WAR IN A MINUTE.

Such is the opinion of Congressman Thomas, of Illinois, who is one of the best posted men on the subject—Blaine and Allison hold a private confab—the result not known.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The squally outlook abroad suggests some inquiry about our navy. Congressman Thomas, of Illinois, one of the best posted men on the subject, says:

"We are not as badly off for war ships as has been represented. Of course our old wooden vessels, with smooth-bore and muzzle-loading guns, are not a match for modern war vessels, but our new ships, armed with new guns, are equal to any that are afloat, and we need not fear the result when they come into action with anything in any nation's navy."

"There is the new vessel, the Vesuvius, tested the other day at Philadelphia. She is invincible. She is the marvel of the naval world, and is to the fighting ships of the greatest power as great an adversary as our wonderful Monitor was when it started the world with its wonderful possibilities a quarter of a century ago. Why, there is nothing afloat that could stand against the Vesuvius. She is the fleetest war vessel ever built, and can throw 600 pounds of nitro-glycerine at a single shot."

"There is no armored vessel afloat, I care not what or where, that can stand against that. The explosion of such a charge against any vessel or even within 100 feet of any vessel now afloat, would dismount her guns, disable her engines, paralyze her crew, if it did not instantly sink her. The Vesuvius can throw three such charges per minute. I would not have the slightest doubt of her ability to completely disable and destroy, if necessary the greatest war vessel afloat in one minute."

Blaine and Allison.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—The Sun's Washington special says: Mr. Blaine and Mr. Allison both left their homes about 8 o'clock, and it is supposed they met upon neutral ground, beyond the eyes of curious observers, to discuss the news brought by Senator Allison from Indianapolis. Their trysting place could not be ascertained, and Mr. Blaine did not return to his hotel until after midnight.

A SINGULAR ACCIDENT.

A Tunnel Door Blows Shut Just as a Train is About to Enter.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., Jan. 31.—As a local passenger train was approaching the Hoosac tunnel Tuesday afternoon one of the heavy iron doors used in winter to cover the entrance, and which had been thrown open by the men stationed there for that purpose, was blown by a sudden gust of wind so that it struck and completely stripped the right side of the locomotive, while a large cross beam attached to the door struck Engineer C. F. Moore and fractured his skull. Moore was also injured internally by being thrown against the tender. He will probably die. He had shut off steam when the door struck the locomotive, but the cross beam struck the throttle and forced it wide open, so that the train dashed ahead into the tunnel, but it was stopped by Fireman Thrasher after running about one thousand feet. Thrasher had also been knocked down and bruised by the beam. The blame for the accident, if any can be placed, has not yet been fixed.

THE STREET CAR STRIKE

Still on in New York City—Police and Strikers Meet.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—The situation in this city, so far as the street car tie-up is concerned, remains practically about the same. People accustomed to take the Twenty-third street Cross Town cars had to foot it. The neighborhood of the Sixth avenue car stable was deserted except by the police. It was said that cars would be started from there, beginning at 9 o'clock, or as soon thereafter as a sufficient force of police could be mustered to man them.

Matters were quiet around the stables of the Broadway and Seventh Avenue Railroad company. The strikers stood in knots on the corner, but were very orderly. A notice was posted in the office window stating that employees who did not report for duty before noon would be considered discharged, and those who returned to work would be fully protected in the discharge of their duties. It was not known when this company would start a car.

The strikers appear to be very well posted regarding the situation throughout the city. The police anticipated some trouble at the various stables when attempts were made to run cars this morning. Fears are entertained especially with regard to the Sixth avenue road.

The Fifth avenue road sent out their first car at 8:50 a.m. Three policemen were on each platform. About one hundred strikers were standing about the depot, but they did not attempt to interfere. The superintendent says that he will not run more than ten or a dozen cars during the day. The Broadway line advertise in the morning papers for conductors and drivers to take the places of the strikers.

At 11 a.m. word was received at police headquarters that there was trouble at Bleeker and Carmine streets. The strikers overturned a Sixth avenue car. There were only three policemen present and they were overpowered.

Police Superintendent Murray was at headquarters at 5 o'clock a.m., detailing men for the day's work. He has at his command 2,500 men, and all have been detailed to points where it is thought trouble may occur.

At the Fourth avenue depot a notice is posted to the effect that 175 conductors, 175 drivers and 150 stablemen are wanted to take the place of the strikers, and all new-comers are notified that those who go to work now will be retained in the employ of the company whatever the result of the strike may be.

Up to 11:30 a.m. about fifty applicants for these positions had been accepted, and at that hour twenty-six cars had been started. Six of the old drivers reported for duty before noon and were put to work.

An encounter between the strikers and officers at Bedford and Carmine streets resulted in several of the mob being beaten, beyond the eyes of curious observers, to discuss the news brought by Senator Allison from Indianapolis. Their trysting place could not be ascertained, and Mr. Blaine did not return to his hotel until after midnight.

A PRACTICAL JOKE THAT KILLED A MAN.

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 31.—At the Licking rolling mill, Newport, Ky., Joseph Hardick and William Stieken were managing the machine used for hoisting scrap iron into the furnace. A large rope with an iron hook is attached to this machine. Stieken suggested to Hardick that they play a joke on Joseph Tape. They hooked the rope around Tape's neck and started the machine. It pulled Tape along until the hook caught in iron bar and stopped, pinning the neck of the unfortunate man solidly against the bar. He was removed to his home, made his will, and expired two hours after the accident. A remarkable thing about the accident was that the man was able to walk around after it occurred. Hardick and Stieken were arrested. Tape, before his death, said that it was accidental, and cleared the men of blame. They were released from jail.
